

WEEK 1 – TEST PROGRAM:

Developed by Michael Ross and Mohammad Omar
(916) 923-2215 PDT – ssorleahcim@comcast.net

Emergency Plans, First Aid Kits, Natural and Manmade Disasters

Classroom activities:

- 1) Vocabulary is large – I hope they can do 20 words in a test
 - a. As a spelling Bee (a spelling bee is a spelling competition. People either compete as individuals, or as teams. I usually do boys v. girls. Rules I USE (but you can change)... everyone has to answer at least 1 question.... One person can't answer all the questions... they can come up with answers as a TEAM, but there has to be a different 'announcer' of the word/spelling... each right word gets one point.... Total points wins... and then give them a prize – like 20 minutes more of recess or something.... Be creative – there are few rules... goal: competitive spelling in a fun and rewarding way
 - b. Do 10 words the first day, 10 the second and all the third. Test on the fifth day
- 2) Have them memorize the differences between the 2 types of disasters – and have them write a “35 word essay”.
- 3) Have each one give a 4 minute ‘speech’ on how they will protect their family in a disaster
- 4) Have the kids create an actual disaster kit
- 5) Concept: Prepare for the two types. Preparation for a man-made and natural disaster are pretty much the same – you can do ½ one day and the other half another – play with it – point is, over 3 days, its covered
- 6) As a class, read the handout of choice and discuss

Wednesday: Manmade

- What is a manmade disaster?
 - Definition #1: Anthropogenic hazards are hazards caused by human action or inaction. They are contrasted with natural hazards. Anthropogenic hazards may adversely affect humans, other organisms, biomes and ecosystems. The frequency and severity of hazards are key elements in some risk analysis methodologies
 - https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Anthropogenic_hazard
 - Definition #2: can include hazardous material spills, fires, groundwater contamination, transportation accidents, structure failures, mining accidents, explosions and acts of terrorism. There are actions that we can take to prepare to react appropriately to these events.
